UW Medicine
SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This course is aimed at non-specialist medical providers, including physicians, nurse practitioners, physician's assistants, and RNs. Additionally, allied health professionals, including pharmacists, dentists, and social workers, would find this course of benefit.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course provides an overview of travel medicine and global health. The course is geared to non-specialist physicians and other medical personnel who will care for those visiting the developing world, or those who live in developing nations. Topics relating to pre-travel care (including immunizations, and malaria prophylaxis) and post-travel care (work up of common medical complaints in the returned traveler, including fever and diarrhea) will be discussed. Additionally, topics relating to global health, including aid work in complex humanitarian crises, and social determinants of health, will be discussed. Information will be presented to registrants in both plenary sessions, and smaller workshop groups.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants should be able to:

- Review common threats to travelers to the developing world
- Review pre-travel measures to mitigate those threats
- Discuss the workup of common medical problems in returned international travelers
- Recognize the relationship between social factors, e.g., poverty, and health
- Summarize common facets of aid during complex humanitarian crises

Attendance Policy - All course activities are exclusively reserved for course attendees. Badges provided at registration are required for entrance into all functions and will be strictly enforced.

ACCREDITATION

The University of Washington School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The University of Washington School of Medicine designates this educational activity for a maximum of 17.75 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits[™]. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Application for CME credits has been filed with the American Academy of Family Physicians. Determination of credit is pending.

The UW SOM is approved as a Washington state clock hour provider by the Washington State Board of Education.

Nurses: 17.75 Contact Hours

- The University of Washington School of Nursing (UW SON) is accredited as a provider of continuing nursing education by the American Nurses Credentialing Center's Commission on Accreditation (ANCC).
- Provider is approved by the California Board of Registered Nursing, Provider #07218, for 17.75 contact hours.

All attendees will receive an attendance certificate for Category 1 credit. Should the regulations for your state require you to have nursing contact hours, applications will be available. The fee is $35.00.
